CROWD TO SEE MRS. DOLAN. Woman Who Killed Henry Jackson in Police Court.

The case of Grace Dolan, who shot and killed Henry Jackson Thursday evening, was continued in Police Court until this morning. Joseph Kealing represented the woman and stated that the defense was cutor said that all the State's witnesses were not in court and asked for a continvance until next Thursday. The defense objected to this, and the case went over until to-day. Judge Cox refused to ac cept bail. When the hour arrived yesterday morning for taking the prisoners from the police station to Police Court there was a crowd of a thousand or more people about the corner of Alabama and Washington streets waiting to see Mrs. Dolan. Superintendent Colbert instructed Captain Dawson to try to evade the crowd by going through Pearl street to Delaware and into th courthouse from the west entrance, but the crowd saw the move and in a few moments Washington street, in front of the courthouse was filled with a howling, eager, curious mob. The rush for the corner of Delaware and Washington streets attracted hundreds of other people, who did not know what was going on. The conrusion was great until Captain Dawson had passed through the crowd and disappeared into

RAILROAD MEN UNEASY

DISTURBED BY THE VISIT OF THE INTERSTATE INSPECTOR.

The Western Passenger Association Takes Up the Question of Editorial Transportation.

It has become known that John C. Marchand, special inspector of the Interstate-commerce Commission, who caused the arrest of A. J. O'Reilly for alleged violation of the interstate-commerce act, has been in the city for several days, and this causes local freight and passenger men considerable uneasiness lest he may have uncovered some irregularities in rate matters on their part. An amusing thing in connection with the stay of the special inspector here is told. He visited the ticket office of the L. E. & W. and asked what their rate to New York was. This road has a differential, and the $16 rate was named. The inspector then begun to try and get a lower rate, but was told that this was the Lake Erie & Western rate and there would be no reduction of the rate the road reports to the Interstatecommerce Commission. The plea that the applicant had only $15 and would give that for a ticket did not avail, and after using other tactics known to passenger men the special inspector left, convinced that the Lake Erie & Western was one road that lived up to the tariff which it placed with street, Sunday afternoon, Dec. 13. Friends in- the commissioners. It is stated that the special inspector visited other offices and found that most roads were strictly living up to the passenger and freight tariffs as reported.

Editorial Transportation.

The general passenger agents of the Western Passenger Association have the question of editorial mileage for 1897 before them, and will at their next meeting take some definite action. The bureau plan, by which the chairman of the association would handle its issuance, is looked now arises from editorial or advertising tickets falling into the hands of the scalpers. As it is now, each road has its own schemes and ideas, all different, and originated to prevent the scalping of such transportation. That part of the public, however, who are entitled to editorial transportation, and are as anxious to see that it is not abused as are the railroad companies, have a right to protest when they are made objects of suspicion simply because some unprincipled chap in the back woods or elsewhere has abused the courtesies extended to him. Adding to this, as do some roads, the employment of a clerk in charge of their advertising department who has neither tact nor sense the uniform adoption of some fair standard governing the isuing of editorial tickets would be a move in the right direc-

The Road Will Be Built.

Huntington Herald. Some days ago the Herald printed statement that the rights and property of the old C., U. C. & C. Railroad had been purchased by a newly organized company known as the Cincinnati, Bluffton & Chicago Railway Company. It was also mentioned that Marshall Fleld, of Chicago, was interested in the enterprise. This is not well founded, as would appear from a letter written by N. W. Bliss, an attorney in Chicago, who is interested in the proposed road. Mr. Bliss writes that he has seen the Herald's article and that the part alluding to Marshall Field was an error on the part of the paper's informant. He adds: "Mr. Field has absolutely no connection with the matter, and I has never even heard of it. It is true however, that my associates and myself have succeeded to all the property and rights of the old C. U. C. & C. Railroad and that the road will be built at an early day and with the aid of English capital. Personal, Local and General Notes. The mileage books of the Big Four are now good on the Lake Shore road between Cleveland and Buffalo.

The Louisville & Nashville will shorten its running time between the North and South a couple of hours. Arrangements are being made to bring South Bend under the jurisdiction of the Indiana Car Service Association. Mr. Bray a few years ago was one of the ticket receivers of the company. All roads in this territory will, on the occasion of President McKinley's inauguration, make a one-fare rate for the round trip, selling tickets March 1, 2 and 3, good to return up to and including March 8. George Lamb has completed his thirty fourth year in the service of the Big Four Company. In 1862 he commenced as fireman, in 1869 he was given an engine to run, and has held the position creditably since. A special train on the New York, Philadelphia & Norfolk on Tuesday was hauled ninety-five miles in eighty-five minutes. A J. The B. & O. has adopted the Pintsch light as its standard, and will equip all of its passenger cars as fast as possible. Two passenger conductors on the Chicago division of the Big Four and one of the conductors on the Peoria & Eastern were yesterday dismissed, and their dismissal causes uneasiness with the other conductors, as those dismissed are among the oldest and most capable men in that service.

It is stated that on no road in the country, unless it be the Eric, have so many capitalists invested and lost heavily as on the Baltimore & Ohio. During the Garrett administration its stock at one time sold at $200 per share, and before he lost control of the road it sold as low as $19 per share, H. L. The Atchison, Topeka & Sante Fe receivership case, which was last Monday remanded to Judge Myers's court by United States Judges Foster and Thayer, came up for argument in the District Court at Topeka, Kan., yesterday. RECORD SYSTEMS

MESSRS, JOHNSON AND SCHMIDT TO INVESTIGATE IN CHICAGO.

Mayor Taggart Appoints Will E. English a Park Commissioner to Succeed H. Clay Allen.

Controller Johnson and County Treasurer Schmidt will go to Chicago to-morrow to investigate the method of keeping the county and city assessment records. Mr. Johnson saw ex-Mayor Hopkins, of Chicago, while the latter was in the city attending the meeting of the National Democrats Thursday. Mr. Hopkins promised to give them all the information possible. It is the intention of the city and county authorities to propose an amendment to the city charter that will simplify the method of keeping records of special assessments. Mr. Schmidt made a trip to Cincinnati a few days ago. While he received some valuable ideas on the county business, he found that the system of keeping city assessment records was even more complex than that now followed here. So long as an amendment to the charter is contemplated Controller Johnson and Treasurer Schmidt believe that the best system known should be adopted. It may be necessary for them to visit other cities to collect data. At the time the charter was adopted, assessments on sewers, streets, etc., were collected by the contractors. Now they are collected by Treasurer Schmidt, as treasurer of the city ex officio. The old system of book-keeping is still in force, and as the accounts are now kept, it is almost impossible for the clerks to inform taxpayers just how much they owe the city. Frequently taxpayers are assessed for some improvement of which they have no knowledge, and the first intimation they have that they owe the city anything is a suit to enforce some lien. It is the hope of the officials to have a system adopted that will make it possible for the cierks to tell just how much is due on any given tract of land and for what purpose the assessment is made. APPOINTED W. E. ENGLISH.

Mayor Makes the Young Millionaire a Park Commissioner. William E. English has been appointed to fill the vacancy in the Board of Park On Sunday the Louisville, Evansville & | circuit judge. Mayor Taggart has been considering Mr. English's appointment for some time, but it was not formally announced until yesterday. It is said that Mr. English is much interested in park improvements. Hospital Electric-Light Plant. It is the intention of the Board of Public Works to establish an electric lighting plant at the City Hospital if the amount available, $2,000, is sufficient. It is believed that amount will be sufficient. A small engine of sufficient horse-power will cost about $175 or $200, it is estimated, and a dynamo can probably be secured within the appropriation. It is said that the boilers now in use can be utilized. Bids will be advertised for. The Indianapolis Electric Company was awarded the contract for furnishing an inter-ward telephone system for $318.35. All instruments and appurtenances are to be guaranteed for three years and the company is to protect the city from any suits

on account of infringements of patents. Electric fixtures are to be placed in the old building and bids have been ordered advertised for. Certified Checks, Not Money. The Board of Public Works entered an order yesterday which provides that after Jan. 1, 1897, all bids for public work submitted must be accompanied by a certified check, the amount of the check to be stipulated in the printed advertisements for bids. Money accompanying bids will not be received. Certified checks must be deposited in each case. Permission was granted to J. S. Carey and J. B. Suitt to repair the rear walls of the building at 63 to Cautions Against Intemperance, as Set Forth in Proverbs xxiii, 15-25-To Attain Spiritual Health.

By Rev. JAMES E. GILBERT. Secretary of American Society of Religious Edu-

INTRODUCTION .- To-day, as on several former occasions, the international committee has tweny-five-dollar rate made by the North- given a topic to a whole passage, which appears to be applicable only to a part of it. The 20th without any foundation in fact. The same | and 21st verses of our lesson alone refer to instory, he says, was started about one year | temperance-forceful words they are, worthy to ago, and in both instances !t came from be stored in the memory. And yet they are suption to one peculiarity of Scripture. Here each Fee declared, no change in the rate from truth and doctrine is generally set in connection with other truths and doctrines. Most men, because of the limitations and infirmities of reasen, tion, and there is no immediate prospect of are disposed to detached and partial examinations frequently reached, to be rectified by fuller knowledge, gained through subsequent investigation. The superior biblical method avoids many difficulties and conducts to safe conclusions. We are now to have a temperance lesson, as a part of a continuous line of thought, based on fundamental principles. WISDOM .- Agreeably to the plan of the entire Book of Proverbs, Solomon begins with wisdom, as elsewhere (Ch. i. 10), representing her as speaking to her son. (Verses 15 and 16.) The address is strictly parental. The opening clause, 'If thine heart be wise," strikes at the very center of being. It is folly to attempt to regulate human conduct by rules alone, however excellent they may be. (Rom. viii, 3.) Actions spring out of the heart. (Prov. iv, 23.) Make that right and the life will be correct. "If thine heart be wise," if wisdom has entered, and pervaded, and controlled, so as to give a distinct character, the person is entitled to be called the son of wisdom. When that regeneration and adoption have taken place, then wisdom shall rejoice. And when, under the power of this good heart right hings are spoken-the speaking being a comprehensive term for all conduct-then my 'reigns shall rejoice," wisdom declares, That is, the deepest chambers of the heart shall be filled with joy on beholding in man that disposition which causes righteous living. This is a powerful appeal to all who are susceptible to holy impres-

ENVYING .- The next two verses, 17 and 18, are evidently elliptical. The omitted part, which may be easily gathered, is needed to render the words intelligible. Great worldly prosperity sometimes comes to the wicked. This results, not from the fear of God, but from evil devices. (Ch. i, 13.) The righteous who behold this good fortune are exposed to temptation. They are liable to think that a sinful career is desirable because of its gain. (Matt. xvi, 26.) Out of such thoughts may come envy, a deplorable spiritual state in itself, leading to most serious consequences. Hence, the warning, given in other Scripture (Psalm xxxvii, 1), and the protective, "Be thou in the fear of the Lord." Regard the will of your Maker as paramount. Suffer nothing to diminish your spirit of loyalty to Him. Desire nothing above His favor. Furthermore, "there is an end," reward to the righteous. His expectations, though delayed, shall not fail. (Matt. xix, 29.) That which he shall receive is far superior to anything that will come to the ungodly. (II Tim. iv. 8.) There is, therefore, no occasion for envy, but rather for absolute and constant content with one's portion in life. (I Tim. vi, 6.) JUDGMENT.-The two advices already given supplement and support each other, the one positive, the other negative. A wise heart would not cherish envy. The exclusion of envy would tend to establish the heart in wisdom. Thus our writer deals with those essentials that tend to make men truly good. Verse 19 strengthens both pre-cepts. "Hear," listen to the voice of wisdom, judge and heed a call to the exercise of one's own powers of judgment, a determination of what is method of attaining a proper conclusion. Many go astray through thoughtlessness. Such persons are rightly called the simple (Rom. xvi, 18), a great company spending time to no purpose, and engaging in many deeds of folly. Wisdom's call, therefore, is the more necessary, as leading up to a wise heart and a good life. It is safe to affirm that if men would only reflect, they would soon be found in the path of life and peace. One chief complaint against Israel was its lack of consideration. (Isa. 1, 3.) ASSOCIATION.-It is after such thoughts that he inspired penman introduces the matter of in-Having enjoined wisdom, forbidden envy, urged the fear of the Lord, and called to meditation, he next refers to associations. Man is a social being. He will not live alone—he ought not. Every power of the body and every faculty of the mind calls for companionship. But society may be profitable or pernicious. A man's environment, to a great extent, determines his character. (I Cor. xv., 32.) Passing by the elevating influence of good society, our lesson warns against that which is bad. A class of persons is selected—"wine bibbers and riotous eaters of esh"-a class to be found in every age and land. They are worldly and sensual people. Wisdom is seeking to make men spiritual, and in order to do that urges not to keep co.npany with such as are carnal. The plea is not against the drink habit. What is now more important, against companion-ship with drinkers. The surest way to avoid an evil practice is to shun those who are addicted

ject of intemperance goes beyond a mere warning against association with drinkers. There is next presented the fearful outcome of the drunk-ard and the glutton. It is significant that these persons are mentioned together. It is as great a sin to eat too much as to indulge in intoxicatng beverages. In both cases the flesh triumphs over the spirit (I Cor. ix. 27), the man is the slave of the stomach. The consequences here mentioned (Verse 21) have been witnessed in all cen-turies. No inspired pen was needed to make the declaration. Universal observation attests the truthfulness of the wise man's words. "Poverty" what vast fortunes have been expended for iquors. Drowsiness'-what stupor has come over the man who indulges his appetite. "Rags" -the poorly clad are in every street of every city, robbed through rum. A large part of the wretchedness of the complaining masses is due to strong drink. But notice how our lesson leaves the statement. There is no application or exhortation to any. Either would have weakened the words. The purpose is to hold up before the mind a vision of the evil that will come to those who fall under the power of the flesh. PARENTS.—The next great thought of the les-ton, contained in Verses, 22, 24 and 25, is Oriental and ancient, but all the more scriptural. whole social system for many centuries, indeed for all time, in the lands of the Bible, has rested on the family as its unit. Every virtue of man and woman was supposed to be grounded upon honor to parents, and every vice to spring out of the absence of that honor. (Ex. xx. 12.) The growth of the filial spirit is the surety for all exellence. Hence our lesson urges one to fatherly advice and to cherish a mother's placing both parents on an equality, the affectionate regard being prolonged even to their old age. The results of such conduct are stated—the father and mother shall rejoice. This presents a most powerful motive to a good life. There are very few who descend so low as to be indifferent to the happiness of the father and mother. Most eople delight to give joy to them in their delining years, and there is no way by which this can be done more effectively than by living rightly and by showing them due respect.
EXHOPTATION.—The 23rd verse is injected between the sections of the advice concerning narents. In one sense it belongs there, as part of that advice, but it also has a wider use, dealing with a matter of supreme interest. The correct life must not depend on associations, on love for nersons, on a mere dexire to make them happy, but must be the product of truth. (John viil, 31, las from quite a number of towns over the | 32.) That is a vitalizing, purifying and expansive force. (Psalm xix. 8.) No one is safe until he builds his life on the truth, (Matt. vil. 24.) Hence the exhortation. "Bay the truth." It cannot be had as a free gift. It must be purchased by per-sonal, protracted, possibly painful effort. (Prov. il. 3-5.) Having it, "sell it not," but so prize it as to hold fast to it, as a miser hoards his sold.

"instruction," which is the incentive and guid-ance needed for its attainment, and "understanding," which is the state of mind resulting from possession. It is marvelous that in the attempts to advance the cause of Christ and to improve our fallen humanity, this exhortation and many more like it, have been so little regarded. (Hos. iv, 6.) All hall to the truth-seekers. (I John, 4.) CONCLUSION.-The wise physician, when his patient has any chronic difficulty, will adopt a general or constitutional treatment. He knows that one organ cannot be restored to its normal state until all the organs are made to perform their appropriate functions. The Great Physician pursues the same method in the cure of souls, as our lesson shows. Intemperance is but one form of disordered action, caused by a derangement the physical and spiritual nature. (Gal. 19-21.) The divine remedy proposed herein deals with the spiritual man-it seeks to give spiritual health. The physical man needs other remedies, but needs these first, for the spiritual is su perior. Read the prescription-seek wisdom, avoid envy, fear the Lord, expect the rewards of righteousness, heed good counsel, shun wine-bibbers, hearken to your father, love your mother, buy the truth. Does any doubt the result if that prescription is followed? Behold the glow of spiritual health, the subordination of the body, the control of the appetites, the beauty and strength of the exalted manhood. See written in letters of lumi-

of Currency Convention. The executive committee in charge of the arrangements for the monetary reform convention met yesterday afternoon and approved the appointment of local committees on arrangements by the presidents of the Commercial Club and Boards of Trade. Chairman Hanna reviewed the work he has under way in bringing together a convention that will represent the best business intelligence of the country and the committee was somewhat surprised and much gratified at the thoroughness with which he has gone at it. He has a corps of stenographers at work addressing personal letters to the heads of various commercial organizations to which the call for the convention is being sent, urging upon them the importance of appointing men of the highest character and intelligence, and letters of a Commissioners caused by the resignation right and proper by due consideration.
